BEST PRACTICE 1

1. Title of the Practice

“Recognition and Reward System for Holistic Development”

2. Goal

The goal of implementing the Recognition and Reward System for Holistic Development is to foster a culture of recognition, appreciation, and motivation within the institution, thereby promoting the holistic growth and success of students. Through this system, the aim is to acknowledge and celebrate achievements across academic, co-curricular, and extra-curricular domains, enhancing student engagement, self-esteem, and overall satisfaction and institutional excellence. Ultimately, the goal is to create a supportive and nurturing environment that empowers individuals to reach their full potential and fosters a sense of pride, belonging, and community within the institution.

Objectives of the Practice

- To promote holistic development among students by recognizing and rewarding achievements in various domains, including academics, co-curricular, and extra-curricular activities, fostering an environment of recognition and support.
- To incentivize participation and excellence in both academic and non-academic pursuits.
- To foster a culture of achievement, motivation, and healthy competition within the college community.
- To appreciate students' diverse talents and capabilities, inspiring their curiosity.
- To boost students' confidence and belief in their capabilities, empowering them to realize their fullest potential.

3. The Context

The college aims to create a conducive environment for the overall growth of its students. Recognizing that holistic development encompasses not only academic success but also involvement in co-curricular and extra-curricular activities, the college has established a comprehensive recognition and reward system.

The institution is dedicated to delivering comprehensive and values-driven education to its students' community, especially, a special focus given to the first-generation college attendees. These students encounter numerous obstacles, including financial constraints, as well as issues related to motivation, self-esteem. Statistics indicate that first-generation college students are at a higher risk of leaving higher education institutions without completing their degrees, often entering with average or below-average academic marks. Recognizing the unique approach, the institution has implemented various strategies to acknowledge and support their achievements. Consequently, students are gained extra motivation, enhanced self-assurance, and improved performance in both academic and extracurricular pursuits. This proactive approach has not only elevated the institution's reputation but has also encouraged students to aspire for greater accomplishments.

4. The Practice

Towards the end of every academic year, the institution celebrates Sports Day, Annual Day to wind up the activities on a note of gratitude and thanks. A big component of the event is awarding student achievers for academic and non-academic achievements. A committee of faculty members headed by the principal scrutinizes the nominations for these awards.

4. The Practice

The college has several clubs and associations like NSS, NCC, Women Empowerment Cell etc., for promoting social activities. The club has coordinators who share their objectives of the club and provide guidance for developing healthy attitude towards social responsibility. The clubs have organized various programs like, tree plantation, awareness on health, right for women in the society, Sparisam, etc.

The following social attitudes are strongly inculcated among the students through above mentioned club activities:

- The Students responsibly volunteer in local community service activities to create a better world.
- Inviting guest speakers who speak about the important issues related to social responsibility. The speakers talk about their own experiences and inspire students to be more socially responsible.
- It offers students a great opportunity to develop their leadership qualities by availing oneself by means of committing himself for social service.

The involvement of students in the activities addresses importance of personality and social development and their application to real-world contexts.

6. Problems Encountered

- Time constraint is a major limitation to conduct various development programs.
- Creating awareness among rural folk remains a huge challenge due to lack of interest, cooperation and support since they are highly resistant to new ideas/changes.
- Most of the rural folk value employment more than education.
- Since the students are engaged throughout the day in class rooms, extracurricular activities need to be conducted only after working hours.
- Students participated with zeal and enthusiasm in large numbers for such social activities. It was observed that to arrange and assign tasks to such a large group of students was a challenge.

Notes:

The college works hard to instill in staff and students a sense of social responsibility. Through the camp, the students get a taste of rural life and gain an understanding of the societal issues faced by the villages. During the first semester, students are encouraged to sign up for and take part in the clubs. An orientation session is arranged annually for new members of NSS, NCC and other clubs.
